About BEYOND 2025

BEYOND 2025: Being Many is a call to actionable hope in perilous times. Uncertainties shape our present and future, fueled by growing democratic erosion, shifting political landscapes, ongoing violent conflicts and the escalating climate emergency. In this context, can the cultural sector take the lead in participatory governance and collective action? What does inclusive cultural leadership look like in our shared pursuit of resistance and transformation?

BEYOND 2025: Being Many invites us to rethink traditional notions of leadership and seeks to uncover alternative, empathetic and sustainable practices that thrive in uncertainty. At its core, the gathering embraces intersectionality, intergenerational perspective and collective approaches. BEYOND 2025: Being Many will explore diverse learning experiences, showcase bold and unconventional ways of governance and explore a possible paradigm for cultural democracy. Join us in being many - to imagine, inspire, and be the change!

BEYOND 2025: Being Many will embrace un-conferencing by nurturing a participatory environment that encourages dialogue and collaboration. The program will blend keynotes and panel conversations with interactive workshops, capacity-building sessions, and site visits to local cultural initiatives. To break away from traditional conference formats, we aim to slow down the pace and allow for deeper reflection and meaningful exchanges. Networking opportunities will be integrated throughout, creating informal spaces for connection and collaboration.

The gathering experience will evolve around three key threads:

How to Be Many

Through project showcases, experience-sharing, workshops, and site visits, we will explore how others embrace being many - whether by amplifying community voices, fostering intergenerational dialogue, creating space for collective creativity, rethinking governance models, enhancing sustainability, or driving joint advocacy.

The Joy of Being Many

These sessions are rooted in generosity, care, and trust. Through collective intelligence and intergenerational work, we will foster peer support, and strengthen connections and solidarity.

Harnessing Many Ideas

We will create spaces dedicated to bold, unconventional thinking, featuring diverse formats to explore innovative ideas.

Welcome to Turin!

On behalf of Club Silencio and Fondazione Fitzcarraldo, co-hosts of this year's edition, we are delighted to welcome you to BEYOND Turin 2025.

This year's gathering takes place in Turin—a city of contrasts and convergences, where industrial legacy meets creative ferment and cultural vitality is deeply intertwined with a desire for social transformation. Turin is not just a backdrop for Beyond: it is an active presence, a co-host in its own right. Its streets, institutions, and communities will serve as spaces for exploration, dialogue, and collective imagination.

Our main stage is Aurora, a neighborhood as diverse and dynamic as the questions we bring to the table. Here, you'll encounter a living laboratory of change: a place shaped by migration, creativity, contradictions, and civic energy. It reflects many of the challenges we face across Europe, and perhaps in your own contexts, too. You'll have the chance to meet its people, walk its streets, and connect with the organisations that animate its cultural life. We hope you'll feel at home.

At the heart of BEYOND 2025 is an intergenerational perspective. We believe that meaningful exchange between established professionals and emerging voices is essential to reimagining cultural practice for the future. That's why you will find the presence of local youth, our Changemakers, woven throughout the program. Their energy and perspectives will enrich our conversations and push our thinking further.

We are looking forward to sharing this journey with you. We hope BEYOND 2025 will inspire your work, challenge your perspectives, and spark connections that last well beyond these few days. Turin has much to offer and just as much to learn from you..

Let's go beyond together and see you in Turin!

City Sessions

Day 1 | 5 June

Democracy: Next Generation Governance

City Sessions Day 1, 5 June, 15.00-17.00

Location: Dorado

Contributors:

Micaela Casalboni, Teatro dell'Argine

Emma Iacovaccio, Politico Poetico

Clara Passarinho, Associação da Minha Rua, A Rafeira

Leon Stille, Collective Nest

Gaia Orondini, Fyonda

Alda Noca, Young Advisory Board

Democracy: Next Generation Governance focuses on the role of youth in reshaping democratic and cultural governance for a more inclusive and sustainable future. As young people across Europe and beyond demand deeper participation, climate justice, and systemic change, this session explores how institutions can respond - not just by listening, but by sharing power.

We will explore how cultural spaces can become platforms for youth-led decision-making and intergenerational collaboration. What structures and mindsets are needed to move beyond symbolic inclusion toward genuine empowerment? This session invites participants to reflect on how to embed youth perspectives at the core of governance and build democratic practices that are future-facing, equitable, and rooted in care.

Democracy: Memory and Representation

City Sessions Day 1, 5 June, 15.00-17.00

Location: La Centrale Nuvola Lavazza

Contributors:

Cristina Da Milano, Ecom

Davide Quadrio, MAO

Adeshola Adetunde Adefioye, Contested Desires

Democracy: Memory and Representation explores how cultural institutions can engage with the complexities of the past in a more inclusive way. In a time of rising polarisation, this session addresses the urgent need to confront postcolonial legacies, open the space to discuss contested heritage, and give a voice to communities silenced in dominant historical accounts.

How can memory practices reflect the diversity of lived experiences and challenge systems of exclusion? What role do cultural actors play in reclaiming space for marginalised voices and building more democratic narratives of belonging? Through an intersectional lens, we will examine how issues of race, gender, class, and geography intersect in shaping both memory and representation and explore pathways toward more just and plural cultural memory work.

"I have learned that the problem of others is the same as mine. To get out of it together is politics, to get out of it alone is greed." Don Lorenzo Milani

We are in times of big changes and crises: it looks like the traditional approach to advocacy doesn't work anymore. This session is about sharing and learning, which could be the strategies for an effective advocacy action in the field of cultural and art sector today.

How can we learn from each other new approaches and trajectories? Which are the necessary words that can lead us? Which language should we speak to find a good communication ground? Which tools?

Starting from the experiences of the organisations in the room, we will share questions and examples to help each one to find new possible solutions. Together, we will create a collective glossary of necessary words for advocacy today and a description of useful tools. After the session, we would like to have a follow-up in some months, to continue the sharing. The glossary and the tools will be shared with all the participants.

The session can be relevant for those who want to learn more about advocacy, for the ones who are experts but need to find new inspirations, for the ones who want to help others, towards a collective advocacy.

Youth Culture and Mental Health: towards caring and empowering ecosystems

City Sessions Day 1, 5 June, 15.00-17.00

Location: Borealis

How can cultural practices contribute to the mental wellbeing of young people in an era marked by crisis, uncertainty, digital transformation, and climate anxiety? This session will start by moving presentations by youth on the 'status quo' and opens a space for critical and generative dialogue on the intersection between youth, culture and mental health.

Bringing together youth advocates, practitioners, and researchers, the session explores how cultural participation can foster a sense of belonging, agency, and emotional resilience among young people and thereby. It also reflects on the systemic changes needed on policy level and the conditions needed to sustain caring, empowering, and non-extractive environments within institutions, communities, countries and policy frameworks.

Through diverse experiences - from artistic programmes to institutional strategies and youth-led actions - the session will explore both challenges and emerging practices in the growing field of culture and mental health. Building on the wealth of experience in the room, the discussions will be fed into a Culture Action Europe position paper on "Youth, culture and mental health" to be published at the end of 2025.

It is especially relevant for cultural professionals, policy makers, educators, and youth workers seeking to co-design more responsive, inclusive, and youth-centred cultural ecosystems.

Democracy: Radical Accessibility

City Sessions Day 1, 5 June, 15.00-17.00

Location: Bagni Pubblici di Via Agliè

Contributors:

Stefan Gies, Culture Action Europe

Agata Etmanowicz, Impact Audience

This session will explore how to amplify underrepresented voices and reach 'non-audiences', addressing the urgent need for more inclusive and accessible democratic practices in the cultural sector. The session will examine how cultural institutions can lead in making spaces for participation and collective action that are truly accessible to all. Through discussions and practical approaches, we will explore how to break down barriers, ensure equitable representation, and engage communities traditionally excluded from cultural conversations. Join us to rethink accessibility as a core pillar of democratic cultural leadership and to shape a future where everyone has a seat at the table.

Workshop: Foresteen - Roots and Relationships

City Sessions Day 1, 5 June, 15.00-17.00

Location: Salotto di Miranda

Contributors:

Cristina Cazzola, Assitej Italia

Giorgio Vacchiano, Foresteen Project

The workshop invites participants to relate the forest ecosystem to the cultural ecosystem to understand adolescents' growth and development processes. The dialogue between the forest and cultural ecosystems stimulates reflection and new paths without seeking definitive answers. The forest metaphor can inspire innovative strategies in cultural management by considering relational networks to create lasting engagement and moving from an individual to a systemic approach. What does it look like to think, feel and behave like a forest in cultural management practices? The session will be especially interesting for those working for and with teenagers and, more generally, for all those interested in transforming their cultural management practices through a deeper understanding of how natural ecosystems work.

Female gazes

City Sessions Day 1, 5 June, 15.00-17.00

Location: Off Topic

Contributors:

Beatrice Dema, Club Silencio

Chiara Lucchini, Regional Development Manager at Torino Urban Lab

Federica Rocchi, Amigdala / Transfemina

Public spaces and heritage sites remain battlegrounds where women, non-binary individuals, and marginalised communities are systematically erased, both physically and symbolically. This session confronts the urgent need to transform urban landscapes through intersectional feminist practices that centre lived experience over dominant historical narratives.

How do we co-create art and activism that not only occupies public space but redefines who it serves? What tools—from participatory soundwalks to community-led research—can amplify underrepresented voices in urban planning and cultural policymaking? We'll explore how collaborative artistic interventions challenge exclusionary systems, foster social cohesion, and turn temporary acts of resistance into lasting structural change. Join us to strategise inclusive futures where feminist gazes reshape belonging, access, and collective power in the cities we share.

Day 2 | 6 June

Democracy: Plural Governance

City Sessions Day 2, 6 June, 11.00-13.00

Contributors:

Celia Grau, Opera Europa

The Democracy: Plural Governance session explores how distributed leadership, community co-creation, and shared responsibility can reshape cultural institutions and networks to better reflect the principles of cultural democracy. By moving beyond hierarchical models, the session invites participants to consider how governance can become more inclusive, participatory, and responsive - embracing diversity, intergenerational dialogue, and intersectional perspectives.

Together, we will reflect on how cultural actors can embed democratic values into their structures and practices, shifting power dynamics and making space for a plurality of voices. This session aims to inspire actionable strategies for more just, accountable, and co-created cultural futures.

Democracy: Digital Governance

City Sessions Day 2, 6 June, 11.00-13.00

Location: Sermig

Contributors:

Natalie Giorgadze, Culture Action Europe
Valeriya Urbanovich, Club Silencio
Daniela Calisi, Salotto di Miranda
Federico Bomba, Rigenerativa-Generative Lo Stato dei Luoghi
Fran Pazos García, Nomad Garden

Democracy: Digital Governance explores how digital tools and technologies are reshaping democratic processes in the cultural sphere, both as opportunities and challenges. This session invites participants to reflect on how we can build inclusive, transparent, and participatory digital governance models that serve communities rather than control them.

Going beyond human-centred design, the session will also consider how we might incorporate non-human voices - such as those of nature, algorithms, and future generations - into governance frameworks. Can we reimagine democracy to account for interdependence and ecological responsibility in the digital age?

Re-searching culture: Jointly imagining research for culture and the arts

City Sessions Day 2, 6 June, 11.00-13.00

Location: Sermig Garden

Contributors:

Burak Sayin, Space-time Works
Rocio Nogales, EMES International Research Network

Giuliana Ciancio, Cultural Policy Pathways

We have an outdoor session designed to foster collaborative thinking and meaningful dialogue for you. Set beneath a gazebo, participants will gather in a relaxed, informal setting to explore the role of research in the cultural and artistic fields today. Through flipcharts, post-its, and open discussion, we'll dive into topics like the state of culture in research, the creation of communities of practice, and how cultural research shape our work. This session invites everyone to contribute their perspectives in a welcoming, horizontal environment. Whether you're actively involved in research or simply curious, we aim to co-imagine the future of cultural research together.

Beyond Care

City Sessions Day 2, 6 June, 11.00-13.00

Location: Borealis

Contributors:

Luisella Carnelli, Fondazione Fitzcarraldo
Kornelia Kiss, Culture Action Europe
Roberto Casarotto - Co-director Aerowaves | Dance Well
Fabrizio Panozzo - Ca' Foscari University
Bianca Kaplan - Associazione Oltre
Anna Formosa - Applied drama practitioner

What happens when the arts transform institutions from within? This session explores how artistic practices - especially those rooted in care, co-creation, and embodied participation - can act as catalysts for deep organisational change in cultural organisations. These practices do not simply add value to institutions from the outside. They have a wider impact: they challenge the way cultural organisations think about care, leadership, authorship, and the ecology of their internal processes. They question hierarchies, open up decision-making, and reshape the rhythms of institutional life.

Starting from the experience of Dance Well and opening up to other perspectives in the fields of socially engaged art, health, and applied performance, the session invites participants to reflect on how cultural institutions can move differently - becoming more inclusive, relational, and responsive.

The session is especially relevant for those working in or with cultural organisations who are interested in understanding how artistic processes can trigger structural transformation and support long-term sustainability and democratic governance.

Workshop: Female Leadership and Gender Equality in the Cultural Sector

City Sessions Day 2, 6 June, 11.00-13.00

Location: Sermig room Unidialogo

Contributors:

Carla Delfos, founder ELIA, Art Futures

Dr. Chrissie Tiller, teacher, thinker, activist

Mercedes Giovinazzo, BJCEM – Biennale des jeunes créateurs de l'Europe et de la Méditerranée

The Disorderly Women Alliance was initiated in 2018, promotes and supports women working in leadership roles in the cultural sector in Europe by encouraging solidarity, raising visibility and empowering established and emerging generations. This session will be curated by its three founders and will explore the journey from the personal to the professional, ultimately leading to the political, as we examine the challenges and opportunities women face in leadership roles within the cultural sector. We will engage in discussions around the following key questions: What are the key obstacles and hidden barriers that women encounter on their path to leadership positions? Is the cultural sector unique in this regard? Does a distinct female leadership model exist? How can we foster greater equity in the sector, from addressing wage gaps to overcoming recruitment biases? How can we support the growth of emerging female leaders?

The workshop is run by the Disorderly Women Alliance which promotes and supports women working in leadership roles in the cultural sector in Europe.

Workshop: Effective and Equitable Organising: Introduction to Sociocracy

City Sessions Day 2, 6 June, 11.00-13.00

Location: ViaBaltea

Contributors:

Thomas Kemps and Martina Beria, Ecosistemica

Discover the principles and tools of sociocracy, an organisational system designed to foster collaboration, equity, and effectiveness. In this experiential session, you will learn and practice how to make collaborative decisions within your team.

Workshop: Towards Braver Spaces

City Sessions Day 2, 6 June, 11.00-13.00

Location: Spazio BAC

Contributors:

Tundé Adefioye, Towards Braver Spaces Collective

Antonia Silvaggi, Melting Pro

This workshop invites participants to rethink what it means to be brave — not through confrontation, but through care, responsibility, and collective support. Together, we will explore how the language we use can include or exclude, how we hold space for others, and how we navigate discomfort and conflict as vital forces for change.

Drawing on lived experience, queer theories of failure, and practical strategies, we will learn how to transform moments of friction into opportunities for deeper understanding, innovation, and community care. Participants will reflect on their own responses to tension, reframe failure as a generative force, and cultivate practices of radical hope.

Through dialogue, listening, and collaborative reflection, this session offers tools to build braver, more inclusive spaces where new ways of being together — and new futures — can take root.

Other sessions

Dance Well Practice

City Sessions Day 2, 6 June, 09.00-10.00

Location: Sermig

Contributors:

Roberto Casarotto - co-director Aerowaves and initiator of Dance Well

Greta Pieropan - Comune di Bassano del Grappa

Anna Kushnirenko - Dance Well teacher

Beatrice Bresolin - Dance Well teacher

This participatory session offers an embodied encounter with Dance Well, an artistic practice originally developed with and for people living with Parkinson's, and now expanded to a wider community across Europe. Rooted in the belief that everyone has the right to dance, Dance Well challenges conventional ideas of authorship, inclusion, and cultural participation. It proposes a radical, embodied, and horizontal approach to working together, redefining how we move, care, and create within and beyond cultural institutions. Through guided improvisation and collective movement, participants will experience dance as a space of agency, interdependence, and community-building.

Beyond its inclusive aesthetics, Dance Well also operates as a vehicle for organisational transformation, shaping new ways of working, redistributing leadership, and expanding the role of cultural institutions. This session will resonate with artists, cultural managers, educators and policy-makers interested in socially engaged artistic practices; rethinking impact and evaluation beyond metrics; fostering embodied, collective and situated leadership; and exploring dance as a space of care and institutional imagination.

Commitment to a Greener Gathering

For the second year, Culture Action Europe has obtained the SHIFT eco-certificate. The eco-guidelines provide a clear framework for effective climate action specific to cultural networks. The SHIFT Eco-Guidelines recognise and address the ecological footprint associated with operating international cultural networks and platform organisations. The guidelines serve as a reference document that aims to minimise their footprint, optimise environmentally sustainable practices, and act as an example of good practice for their members and other networks. They are purposely made openly accessible in the hope they can inspire structural organisational change in the cultural sectors, in the broadest sense. We're making sustainability a priority and invite you to do the same:

Take the train whenever possible – especially for trips under 600km or under 5 hours.

Skip indirect flights – even if they are cheaper. If your destination is tricky to reach, try to connect by land instead of flying internally.

Avoid solo car travel – consider carpooling or alternative modes.

Give yourself more time to travel – sustainable options might take longer, but they're worth it. If you can, stay a bit longer and combine your trip with other meetings or visits.

All catering is vegetarian – with vegan options available. No meat or fish is served.

We prioritise ethical food sourcing – favouring organic, fair trade, and local produce, ideally from community-based or small-scale providers.

Reduce waste – Avoid disposable tableware, bring a reusable tote for any purchases, and sort waste properly using Turin's recycling system.

Save energy where you can – switch off devices when not in use and use venue Wi-Fi instead of mobile data.

Bring your own bottle and mug – tap water in Turin is clean and safe to drink, and there are refill stations throughout the city.

Thank you for contributing to a more environmentally responsible event!

Community Values

BEYOND 2025: Being Many is an invitation to exchange, collaborate, and rethink how we come together. Co-hosted by Culture Action Europe, Club Silencio and Fondazione Fitzcarraldo, this gathering is shaped by collective participation, openness, and the richness of diverse perspectives.

We believe it's important to create an environment that nurtures dialogue, listening, and shared responsibility. To cultivate an inclusive and open gathering that is reflective of the values we uphold, we invite participants to embrace the following principles:

- Make space for others, listen actively, and engage with curiosity and care. Allow all speakers and participants to complete their statements without interruption. Respect that many in the room may not be speaking in their native language.
- Use the language that individuals prefer when referring to their gender, disability, or identity. If in doubt, ask respectfully.
- Recognise that we all bring unique histories, traditions, and ways of knowing to the conversation. Embrace moments of challenge and contradiction, recognising that the diversity of thought enriches our collective exploration.
- If someone is using access support, communicate directly with them. If a participant is using a wheelchair, be mindful of your physical positioning in conversation.
- Respect personal space. Always ask for permission before physical contact or moving into someone's space.
- Self care is community care! Take breaks and recharge as you need to be able to sustain yourself and energy inside and outside of the gathering.
- Community values are built together. Do you have any other suggestions for the list? Send to beyond2025@cultureactioneurope.org.

Transportation

Getting to Turin

CAE encourages participants to consider sustainable travel options whenever possible. If feasible, we recommend traveling by train, bus, or carpooling to reduce environmental impact.

By Train

Turin is well-connected by trains, with Torino Porta Susa and Torino Porta Nuova linking major cities around Italy. Direct international routes are available from France, Switzerland, and Germany.

Please visit Trenitalia for national and international connections. For additional high-speed rail options, check Italo. If travelling internationally, you can explore route options on Eurail.

By Bus / Coach

International and domestic buses connect Turin with major European cities. FlixBus, BlaBlaCar and Itabus offer routes from various destinations, with stops at Vittorio Emanuele station, Torino Lingotto stations and Stura station (check which one is closer to your hotel).

By Car / Carpooling

Turin has direct motorway connections to France, Switzerland, and the rest of Italy. If driving, consider carpooling to share travel costs and reduce emissions. Platforms like BlaBlaCar offer shared rides between European cities.

Please note that paid parking is required in most areas of Turin. Check with your accommodation for options or use public garages near the city center.

If you plan on traveling by car, we encourage you to meet up with other BEYOND participants to save on costs and minimise our carbon emissions.

By Air

If train travel is not an option, you can book a direct flight to Torino Caselle Airport (TRN) whenever possible to minimise emissions.

Getting to the City Center from TRN

A note about using Signal at this year's gathering: In line with the themes of BEYOND 2025: Being Many, we believe ethical choices shape stronger collective futures. Signal's nonprofit, open-source model—built on privacy, security, and transparency—aligns with our commitment to resisting extractive tech and safeguarding democratic values. Unlike platforms tied to surveillance capitalism (WhatsApp/Meta) or geopolitical agendas (Telegram), Signal ensures encrypted communication free from corporate or political interference. This choice reflects our gathering's core ethos: fostering trust, equity, and global solidarity through tools that empower, rather than exploit, communities.

The BEYOND Zine

We are excited to announce a special project for this year's annual gathering: our very own collaborative zine! The BEYOND zine is not only a way to co-develop a final outcome of the event but also to embrace diverse ways of seeing, making, and sharing knowledge across our ecosystem.

A zine is a self-published, non-commercial print work, typically produced in small, limited batches. Historically and culturally, zines have offered a platform for voices and ideas that are often too niche, radical, or outside the mainstream of traditional publication. As the Bindery Collective puts it: "A zine can be produced with the simplest of tools, and easily distributed low-to-the-ground, outside capitalistic or potentially oppressive systems." Zines have long been tools of resistance and radical self-expression, offering marginalised voices a platform to challenge dominant narratives. Rooted in DIY ethos, they democratize storytelling, making them vital to social movements across the world.

Zines provide a unique platform for self-expression, using different media—writing, drawing, photography, collages—to explore ideas or share personal experiences. By making a zine together, we embrace this form of creative expression as a way to not only amplify individual voices but also foster a sense of collective creativity.

Throughout the BEYOND gathering, we will be discussing how we challenge individualism and rethink governance models. Whether you contribute a poem, a sketch, a photograph, or a short reflection, your addition will help shape the larger story of what it means to "be many."

How to Get Involved

As you are engaging at BEYOND 2025, channel your reflections, questions and inspiration into creative energy. All contributions are welcome! The zine is open to any type of creative contribution, but here is some inspiration for how you can participate:

- Doodles: something that captures a moment of inspiration or insight from a session or conversation.
- Poem: write a haiku or poem about key themes in BEYOND like resistance, solidarity, or inclusivity.
- Collage: using photos or recycled event materials, or create a physical piece from found objects
- Song or playlist: that reminds you of one of the topics we will discuss.
- Meme: share a meme or political cartoon that represents your current situation as a creative.

- Recipe for change: share a metaphorical recipe card or a visual guide for something symbolic, like "The Recipe for Building Inclusive Leadership" or "Ingredients for Collective Empowerment."
- Flash fiction: write a 200-word flash fiction piece set in a world where one major challenge in the creative sector has been completely overcome.
- Photograph or photo essay: send us your best shots. It could be a simple symbol, abstract shapes, or a visual metaphor related to the topics of the event (e.g., community practices, or cultural democracy).
- Care Ritual: Share an example of your own ritual or a reflection on how art and creative practices can be part of collective healing.

Way to Contribute

- By email: Send photos, pdf, docs, videos, etc. Make sure to include your name, organisation (if applicable), and credit any other creator whose work you include in your submission. BEYONDzine@cultureactioneurope.org.
- Social media: tag Culture Action Europe on Instagram or LinkedIn or share with the hashtag #BeingMany2025
- In-Person Submissions (TBA): Details regarding physical drop-off points and other submission methods will be provided during the gathering.

The BEYOND 2025 Zine is all about the joy of being part of something bigger—a shared story that can only come to life when WE ARE MANY! When we leave Torino, the zine will be a lasting record of our time together. It will serve as a resource for future conversations and a toolkit for action.

We look forward to seeing your creativity and contributions!
